Brief Overview of Retreat Topics:

- Reimagining Talent and the Role of the CHRO: This session will explore how the role of the CHRO is evolving and becoming increasingly complex. The discussion will span a range of factors contributing to this shift including fast-paced changes in technology and automation, an ever-changing workforce profile, new ways of working, and an increased focus on talent.
- Talent Management Success: An interview-style conversation on the impact and outcomes stemming from GlobalGiving’s talent management strategies. Insights into how they have created growth and success will also be shared.
- Humanity and Business: Evidence-based conversation about how humanity in the workplace is quickly becoming essential to talent management success and a key strategy to organizations seeking long-term impact in the communities they serve.
- Talent Management Vision Boarding: While vision boards are traditionally used to help clarify, concentrate and maintain focus on personal goals, CHROs will participate in this out-of-the-box session to help crystalize their vision for their organization’s talent management future.
- From Diversity to Inclusion - Strategies for Driving Measurable Progress: This session will focus on building a sustainable funnel of diverse talent, understanding the optics and impact of the "Me Too" movement and uncovering gender parity realities within the nonprofit sector.

- Insightful Decision-Making in an Overthinking World: This fast-paced, interactive session will help leaders look beyond the data and improve their strategic decision-making approaches to talent management leadership now and into the future.

"Nonprofit HR continues to focus on the role of the CHRO, as their contributions to missions have long-lasting and systemic impacts on the entire sector’s workforce. Providing a safe-space for them to identify their greatest opportunities for success ultimately leads to more substantive talent management outcomes.” said Lisa Brown Alexander, Founding CEO, Nonprofit HR.

Nonprofit HR, well-known for its Knowledge and Insight Practice Area which produces dozens of publications and in-person and virtual events each year, convenes leaders throughout the year on targeted topics.

“We created a unique experience for this event that allows CHROs to build relationships within their peer community—a critical requirement considering the rapidly changing nature of human resources in the social sector!” said Brown Alexander.
